If They Claim To Offer Liquidity Then Why Are They Still CHaracterizing Such Assets as Illiquid...And Other JG Wentworth Fallacies

JG Wentworth issued a press release the other day that highlights the inconsistency of its message. JG Wentworth claims that it is the oldest and most respected buyer of deferred payments for "illiquid assets" such as structured settlements, annuities and through its dedicated subsidiary, life insurance payments. If JG Wentworth and other companies offer liquidity then the assets are logically no longer illiquid are they? With reference to structured settlements, one can highlight a case in p
